RED MASK M.I.A

Red Mask was reportedly last seen near a railroad crossing, using an open field as a private gun range for target practice. Reports stated that Red Mask was surrounded by police in a six-hour standoff after the masked vigilante refused to give up his weapon. The situation escalated when one of the officers began to provoke Red Mask, by blowing kisses at him, which in return an exchange of hostile words was made. Tear gas was deployed and a K-9 was used to slow Red Mask down before he surrendered to police to prevent further conflict. His current whereabouts are undoubtedly unknown at this time.
